Compulsions, compulsions, I think we have a common wisdom about what it is, right?

0:00:12

Yeah. What I have an idea of what compulsion is.. . Compulsion, everyone immediately connects to the most common of all, which is food. And according to what we understand about the idea of food compulsion, we... Do you know what?

0:00:32

Did you leave it up there?

0:00:35

Don't worry.

0:00:36

I have to take my glass.

0:00:38

Thank you.

0:00:43

I went there, but it looks like Uber is waiting for the race, you know? Or did it go down now?

0:01:19

Gabi...

0:01:26

It's just the beginning, right?

0:01:28

It's just the beginning... foreign oh

0:01:59

there's a chamomile tea over there.

0:02:02

Oh, thank you.

0:02:03

Do you want some?

0:02:04

There's only one. We were talking yesterday about compulsion, and we were talking about what compulsion is. I think for everyone, everyone understands what compulsion is, or there's someone who doesn't.

0:02:25

It would be nice to talk about compulsion. I'll let you guys talk about it This is a specific compulsion, which is the alimentary compulsion. I imagine it as a repetitive act, which repeats itself every day, every, I don't know, how long. It's uncontrollable, right? You don't have control.

0:03:16

And what do you think is the alimentary compulsion?

0:03:18

I'm with you, I'm with you.

0:03:19

What is the compulsion?

0:03:21

I don't know what you have in mind.

0:03:22

A repetitive act?

0:03:23

No, it would only be a repetitive act.

0:03:26

But it's the alimentary compulsion.

0:03:27

It's also for all compulsions.

0:03:28

Really? Uh -huh. Yeah, there's the compulsion for shopping as well, which is very common besides food, right? The compulsion for shopping, you always want to buy, always want to buy, right?

0:03:40

You can't put money in the account because you already have to get the money out of the account.

0:03:44

And sometimes you can't control it, right? A lot of times you can't control it.

0:03:47

There's the nipomania, the compulsion for sex.

0:03:49

The compulsion for sex, the compulsion for...

0:03:52

Kleptomania.

0:03:52

Huh? Kleptomania. What is kleptomania?

0:03:56

Kleptomania.

0:03:59

Kleptomania.

0:04:01

Kleptomania. Kleptomania. Kleptomania. Kleptomania. But that's it, all this... drug, alcohol, everything that comes from this repetitive effort to do something that you're not controlling, right? I can't stop doing it, I can't stop eating, I can't stop buying, I can't stop having sex, I can't stop thinking about it.

0:04:42

When I'm not doing it, I'm thinking, and it's something that's repeating and doesn't stop, and sometimes it stops, but then I think it's okay, and suddenly it comes back and I start again. So today I picked up a book because this book is the main reason why I rediscovered another kind of relationship with compulsion. Because every time the compulsion came, I had a lot of mental compulsion. So every time the compulsion came, for me it was like the chaos of my life. Chaos, the most horrible thing in the world, and that thing of blaming myself for being there again, in that cycle again, of not being able to stop, and of... Okay, so I'm here, so let me stick to this here, and then I'll see, then I'll solve it, right?

0:05:30

I'll leave it for later. um um living in your circle's house. This ability to be well with yourself and with life, no matter what happens, has always been there. Maybe it's just a thread of water that you barely realize, but it's there despite everything. If you, like most people, live almost exclusively within a story in your head, the clouds of thought that surround you do not eliminate your connection with yourself, but hide them.

0:06:20 and asking to be simply who you are. While you remain trapped in this story, you don't realize that below the thousands of thoughts to which you devote attention, there is a world where it is possible to believe in yourself, to believe in life and feel the joy of your own nature. Because when we are young, we establish such a deep connection with life, but when we are adults we end up feeling half alive. The best way to understand this riddle is to imagine a splendid house. From now on, I really want us to start doing these imagination exercises. Imagine a splendid, furnished house, full of light and laughter.

0:07:05

This is the house of your being. When you were a child, you lived there and were totally receptive. You lived in your own body, drenched in the well of your womb, and the energy of life flowed freely through you. The upstairs floors were the territories of your heart. and all the doors and windows were open to life.

0:07:28

Your heart was so vigorous that each beat bombed to each corner of your being the joy of loving yourself and life. And the basement of your mind was a wonderful place, full of imagination and curiosity. You could simply introduce yourself to the adventure of life, instead of trying to transform it into what you believed it should be. As it was receptive, everything touched you deeply. Do you remember savoring each lick on the ice cream cone?

0:08:10

Do you remember admiring the clouds that danced for you with amazement? Do you remember the ballet of dust particles illuminated by the ray of the sun that penetrated the room? Re -go -ji -ja -r -si and the attention needed to survive. This wouldn't last long. In the purity of youth, in addition to being receptive to the joy of being alive, you were also vulnerable to the actions and expectations of the people around you. The giants of your world, parents, brothers, uncles, teachers, neighbors, priests and others, began to influence you.

0:09:20

Life wounded you and they transferred the wounds to you. Even with loving parents and an apparently perfect childhood, that's what happened. No one taught you to remain receptive in the presence of pain. To survive, you learned to close parts of yourself, hold your breath and contract your body. Every time you did it, trying to deny what was happening, you put another part of yourself in a box, which you hid in a room in the house of your being. At the door of each room, you fixed a sign that said, do not open.

0:09:54

Under these words, in small letters, I warn you, this room is full of bad feelings. But, even behind closed doors, those feelings still influenced your life and ended up feeding your compositions. As it grew and the circumstances overwhelmed it, crushed it, confused it and threatened it, you locked more and more rooms in your house. This, instead of airy and full of light, would become dark and muffled. Soon all the rooms were filled with boxes of feelings and you were forced to take some to the basement, in the hope that it would no longer torment you. They were the ones that contained what you feared the most, anger, terror and despair.

0:10:36

You learned to keep your stomach contracted and never take a deep breath. so that the gate of the basement would not open. You didn't want this to happen at all, but not everything is lost. While you were churning your feelings, you also learned more about the world of the mind. You found out what a magical instrument it was and learned that in it you could hide from life. One day, while exploring the basement where the thoughts were, he found a flat screen TV, a DVD player and several DVD boxes.

0:11:06

He found out that it was possible to sit there and distract yourself with movies about life. Much safer than living it. finally began to spend more and more time in the basement, since living life would imply dealing with confused and powerful feelings. You changed the forbidden floors of the body for the closed environment of the mind. As the mental images were dominant, you didn't even notice that you had lost the true connection with yourself and with the life you enjoyed as a child. The more you lived inside the mind, the more you believed and believed.

0:11:35

one of his central ideas. To be safe, you need to be in control. By becoming obsessed with control, he ended up moving away from his deepest wisdom. Trained to distrust one's own feelings, he convinced himself that he should no longer go down to the lowest floors of the house, especially the basement. Instead, he should control, control and control. Thus, the desire to be receptive to life and the pure joy of living disappeared.

0:12:05

I don't know when it will be released, now or when I want it to be released?

0:12:07

When I want it to be released?

0:12:08

But until when? Until when are we going to read it? It's the last one, remember?

0:12:14

Until the next chapter.

0:12:17

Ok. Everyone will read it until the next chapter. Just a moment.

0:12:28

Until the next title.

0:12:31

Oh, ok. Oh no, I've already read almost everything.

0:12:34

Is it here?

0:12:35

Is it here?

0:12:36

Oh, so I'm going to finish it.

0:12:42

No, so go.

0:12:43

So go.

0:12:45

Where did you finish it?

0:12:46

Here, look.

0:12:47

Really? Yes. Is it up to here? It's up to here. There's only a part in the middle. Calm down, breathe.

0:13:19

the language. You had the first experience of trying to recreate the joy you knew when you were totally connected to yourself and to life. Maybe it was with the glass of wine that turned his body into liquid fire, or with the deep relaxation he felt after eating a forbidden food, or with the happiness of a shopping spree, or the excitement of winning a game. Actions like these were just shadows of the wonderful sensations he experienced when he occupied the whole house. but as the whole house was no longer available, it gave the impression of replacing the old satisfaction.

0:14:05

Unable to be who he was, you began to imagine who he could be.

0:14:10

In the attic, there was a pile of DVDs that taught him to be successful. Concentrated on becoming different from what he was, he did not notice the voices that came out of a speaker, criticizing his endless search for perfection.

0:14:25

He also did not notice that they left the wonderful world of I am and met when a child in exchange for the world of I am not, I will be.

0:14:39

He controls until today, he will have to control until tomorrow. I wish someone had done this for me, in this case.

0:14:47

It's because then it's going to be just right. It won't? I think there are four paragraphs there, isn't there? Try it. As the wonderful people leave, I used to watch a lot of movies about have to, should and is necessary, a sub -current of discontent, boredom and despair, silent, moved inside your being, but you made an effort not to notice. As you were disconnected from the food of your heart and the support that the crown of your self gave you, provide, life in the sun became a constant search for the peace you knew when you occupied the whole house of your being.

0:15:28

0:15:36

You tried to find it in new relationships, spending money, doing gymnastics, trying to improve your appearance, driving a more luxurious car or improving your education. This led you to seek therapies, classes and religions, in the hope that, Fixing what was wrong, everything would be fine. I don't know, it seems that... Sorry, I ate everything. Persistence is good in itself, but even if you reach your goals, win the lottery, get a PhD, understand where the pain comes from, learn to say 20 times a day that a person is peaceful and radiant, they will never be enough. Everyone was able to do this exercise of imagination, of realizing us as this house, and how, when we are connected to ourselves, we have access to this whole house, which is a great field of fun, where we have several different rooms, and receive several things that pass through you, and say goodbye to these things, and you have all this access, all this freedom inside your house.

0:17:18

And then, when it happens, is Yeah, we get depressed, we get repressed for a lot of reasons. We start repressing things, repressing feelings, repressing parts of us that we don't want other people to see. Or we think that now I don't have to be like this, now I have to be like this, because I'm not like this, I need to be like this. And then you keep closing a little door at a time.

0:17:51

Leaving a closed door every time until we go up and up and up and it just stays here in the mind.

0:17:57

Only in this sótão, that this lot of things that we need to do, remembering things from life that were good back there, but that are no longer good. Then it comes along with a frustration and repeats, repeats, repeats. And at some point in your childhood, your youth, at some point in your life, You realized that when you ate something very tasty, it gave you that feeling that you had when you had this house open. Do you understand? When you had that moment of being with yourself, of being full there in childhood, where you just had to be you, you didn't have to be anything else, you just had to be that. And you were experiencing that gigantic pleasure.

0:18:44

And then when you ate a meal, you felt something similar to that. And then when you're in the attic of your mind, reliving your life, you realize that when you eat, you have that feeling. Or you realize that when you buy, you have that feeling. Or that when you're having sex, you have that feeling. Or when you're trying some kind of drug, or lying, you have that feeling. And then you start looking for that feeling again, and again, and again, and again.

0:19:14

But it's not because you don't have it, you need to look for it because it's what gives you that. It's because you're missing all this other pleasure that is being present. This book talks a lot about confusion, and I wanted us to make this change and then say what is compulsion from this change for us, because now we said that it is this repetitive, uncontrollable movement, which always leads to bad things, usually leads to bad things, when we don't feel able to control ourselves, it always generates a feeling of frustration and bad things, and a cycle leads to another cycle.

0:19:59

because then the cycle of spending a lot of money leads you to the cycle of never having money and having anxiety about not having money and then it leads to this lot of things but if we change the conclusion and we start to analyze it as being as if it were something on the side of your most conscious self trying to tell you, yes, there is something wrong You are looking for pleasure, you are wanting the pleasure of that, and not of that. But it's like she's warning you that there's something wrong and you need to go back to yourself.

0:20:44

If we do this exchange. Can you understand?

0:20:47

Compulsion is a symptom.

0:20:49

That you are disconnected from yourself. Compulsion is a symptom, yes. It's not the problem. It's the symptom, it's the alert. Right.

0:20:59

It's like a big alert. uh -huh. if we think of it that way.

0:21:08

It can be repetitive in the words, but it's for us to be able to really go deeper. If we see the conclusion as that, which it is, maybe. I'm just trying to think in a different way. I don't want to repeat, but think differently and need imagination. Imagination takes time. You entered this path, swimming in these waters.

0:21:54

Maybe the symptom is just a wounded child.

0:21:59

In the sense that you feel that alert, it is literally your child communicating with you. And you have the option to ignore it and do it as if it were a cry. The cry is not agonizing, we don't want it to stop, but it is important because it means something. In the same case, the cry would be the compulsion and the child would be born. The compulsion would be the cry of the child. Because it's not necessarily her saying it, because she doesn't verbalize it.

0:22:40

At the time of the combustion, you don't have a real dimension of what's happening.

0:22:43

You just make a combustion, you don't have a conscious control.

0:22:48

You don't have a conscious control of that. And then you keep doing it, and the sensation keeps stimulating, you keep doing it. But that feeling deep down, it doesn't go away. That feeling, it goes away until a certain moment. But deep down, The way I see it, it's not what I'm talking about.

0:23:23

People have told me this before, and I remembered it. It's like when you... This issue of desire... this desire to do something, like, I want to eat something different.

0:23:35

He talks to me sometimes, like, I want to eat something different, then you end up spending.

0:23:40

So this desire to eat something different, or do something different, you end up having this compulsion to spend too, I think it's like a desire, like a water sprouting, and this water is sprouting there, and then you don't have control over this water, you can put a lid on it, If you put a cap there, what will happen?

0:24:05

But if you put it to block it all, one hour it will burst. So maybe that's the way I deal with it, right? It's true, it's like letting it leak a little bit. It's serious. Then I let it leak a little bit, because if you cover it at once, I try to block it, it will burst at once.

0:24:26

But thinking about this perspective of compulsion being a... Being alert, instead of being the problem.

0:24:35

Not dealing with it as if it were a problem. Like, it arrived, I realized that I have a compulsion. I realized that I'm doing things, because we're adults, we realize when we're doing things out of control. I thought about the symbolism... Go ahead, continue. Then it arrived, you realized that it arrived.

0:24:53

How do you visualize it? Starting from the point that it is an alert.

0:25:01

Now we're trying to bring this awareness.

0:25:04

You understand that now it's no longer about me trying to repair the damage of what's happening.

0:25:10

It's no longer about letting it leak a little or covering it, it's no longer about repairing the damage.

0:25:15

It's about me stopping, realizing, putting myself as a person who is observing and looking at this compulsion and seeing it in a way.

0:25:25

And that's the way I'm trying to see, I'm trying to get to you now, so we can visualize it in this other way, under this other perspective, at this moment.

0:25:37

And I was thinking of something else. Because I'm thinking in practice.

0:25:45

It's another look. You changed the rhythm, you changed the rhythm now. Did I change it? No, but repeat. Repeat, I want to understand. Imagine, let's put it into practice, I'm here living my life, I'm in a quiet way, piriri, paroró, and suddenly I realize that I'm eating a lot.

0:26:03

And then I realize that it's not satiating me, and then I start to understand that I'm in a crisis of food compulsion.

0:26:11

If I look at compulsion as if it were a call and not a problem that I have to solve, how would I look at it? It's that I'm trying to make us think about this moment, the moment I realize that I'm having a repulsion. Instead of being a... I need to stop eating, or I need to change this for something else, or I need to... Before that, it's what we do before that, when we realize it. You have to understand that repulsion is a desire that is being repressed, and you have to understand what desire is being repressed. Because compulsion comes when this repressed desire, as in Kelvin's allegory, bursts. And then what is trying to sprout from the unconscious that is manifesting itself in this way, which is eating without stopping? While you were talking, I thought of the perfect allegory, simply perfect. Who here remembers Gato Izonho, from Alice in Wonderland? Gato Izonho is the perfect allegory for these things that disappear in one way and appear in another, you know?

0:26:55

0:27:29

Because the cat, he did that, right? He was in one place, then suddenly he spits out smoke, and now he was in another, and the worst thing is that he had the power to metamorphose, so he kind of disguised himself. And the coolest thing is that there's that famous chapter where Alice asks the cat what path she should take. And then he asks, but what path? Where are you trying to go? For those who don't know where it goes, any path works.

0:27:55

So if Alice doesn't know that before she has to look inside and ask herself what is the path she needs to take, she will take any path and this any path can end up becoming a food compulsion.

0:28:07

When a desire of ours is repressed, be it this desire to play, to be in total harmony with oneself, let's imagine that this is the primordial desire of everyone, to be in harmony with oneself.

0:28:23

When this desire is repressed by the principle of reality, which is rigorous, and we repress this desire for a long time and we unbalance ourselves it's like the unconscious giving us this signal in another way the repressed desire disguises itself as the compulsion it's an idea

0:28:49

I'm being totally psychoanalytic here.

0:28:52

It looks like you too. Keep going. You have to strengthen the ego, right? You have to have a strong ego.

0:29:21

I think we're confusing the words.

0:29:37

I think that when a person...

0:29:39

Wow, what you're saying is another word. Guys, don't you remember when a person says that she's awesome? No, egocentric would be when a person says that everything revolves around her, right? Yes, but ego in this case would only be the root of the word egocentric, not that the word egocentric defines what ego is. Please. I understand your vision, but I'm trying to deconstruct it.

0:31:04

Because it's a vision that, like, against my will, I share. Because... Like, okay, it's very... It's very humble, right? It's very enlightened, wanting to say that the ego is minimal, right? It's very...

0:31:20

It's very sanctified, this thing of, like, having the minimum ego, right? But I believe that in addition to having a... that we also... Ego? Ego is a Latin word that means me. Me, I am the ego. Ego sum.

0:31:47

I don't understand your question.

0:32:00

I think, man, I'm sure that Ego means me, I'm not sure.

0:32:06

That's it, Ego Sum.

0:32:07

Ego Sum.

0:32:08

Cogito Ego Sum.

0:32:09

It's Latin.

0:32:13

That's it.

0:32:14

Cogito Ego Sum.

0:32:17

For me, it's part of the experience of being on Earth.

0:32:21

Wow, you doubted me so much that I started to doubt myself too. I noticed. I noticed the moment you started to doubt yourself. Wow, now I'm mad at you. Why did you do that? Like, what's happening when the person is done?

0:32:35

In this great experience that we are all me, right? And then there was this desire, this will to fragment into various things so that we could live the experience of life from various perspectives. If I think this way, if I believe this way, the ego is part of this great experience. Because the ego is what makes the identity of each person. I understand that But what is the direct result of a person knowing that her heart beats in all things? This analogy is very beautiful.

0:34:02

She felt a greater empathy for the other, but for her to be more charitable, but for her to be more How is a person going to develop this love for all? How is she going to develop this empathy?

0:34:29

Demonstrate that she loves everyone? Demonstrate charity?

0:35:03

Like yourself, you know? At the end of the sentence.

0:35:34

So, you say...

0:35:36

If I don't have a full ego, how can I connect with myself? And if I can't connect with myself, how can I connect with everyone, if everyone is me?

0:35:43

Can I say something real quick? So, when you put...

0:35:48

What?

0:35:49

No, but we're going to the right point.

0:35:52

When you connect with everyone, I see it in a very direct way, in the sense of being with all living beings, because everyone knows that we share DNA, So, in that sense, we are all related in that sense.

0:36:06

We are all in a big spiral. Exactly. What happens now. What originated at the beginning. That the beginning is now and the end is now. Mari, you say that because it's really cool to have that vision.

0:36:24

But you say that mainly because you've already done this refinement work.

0:36:28

You already have this connection with yourself.

0:36:36

is She... and the process of learning to love yourself, to love yourself as much as to love the other, is this process of strengthening your ego.

0:37:06

And from the moment she can love herself, and love the other, and she starts to feel her heart beating in all things, she starts to love even, like, her work.

0:37:16

She starts to love her relationship with people, she starts to understand the repressed traumas and desires, and love them too. Love the compulsion, love the tragedy, the traumas, the crying, the pain.

0:37:32

Love.

0:37:34

The body, the mind...

0:37:37

Of loving the tragedy, the body, the pain...

0:37:49

But you can't understand how this crying is something that you love, because imagine if we didn't have it. Imagine if your child didn't cry, if she was silenced her whole life. If you had given up on coming back to yourself. And we would have been all quiet and silent. Do you understand? It's more in that sense.

0:38:08

If you imagine compulsion as being crying... For me, compulsion, literally for me, Gabriele, it comes into the question of the ego, for me it comes into this question. Like, what you brought to me makes a lot of sense.

0:38:27

And I looked for meaning in that.

0:38:29

So I'm talking about the wounded child, which would be your physiology.

0:38:33

But for me, it's a question of ego. Because this part that we brought here, this other river, is very symbolic for the situation.

0:38:40

Now, if we look from the outside, it's an adult person, aware of himself, But when you talk about ego, does it automatically have a bad side?

0:38:54

Do you understand that ego is good? It depends. Just like everything is good. Everything can be good, everything can be bad. It depends.

0:39:07

But when you relate compulsion to ego, it's in a bad way.

0:39:11

That's why you talk about not loving compulsion.

0:39:19

This is the perspective that we are trying to bring, the perspective where the side of defending, which is the side of you understanding the compulsion as this cry, loving this cry, understand? Loving this beautiful ability that we have, that our child has, to still be able to manifest. And it's different, you're loving the child, you're not loving the cry. But the cry is not the child's attempt to come back to life? So... Ok.

0:40:15

What we do is put a mask on it, see the problem, and tell it to do something, blame itself, I don't know what. Then it says it's going to change, then it goes back into that cycle. Because it knows that it releases dopamine, and it will release more dopamine. But while we can stay, because this has been happening for many years. We've been dealing with this for many years. If we keep looking at this confusion as being a bad thing, and stay in this same cycle, we already know where it will lead.

0:40:47

The invitation here is, when we realize, when we are bringing this light of consciousness, and also bring this provocation of an observant state, to just realize, and not try to do anything. What is love to you? What is love to me?

0:41:22

What does loving something mean?

0:41:42

And it's something that you manifest, not by someone, but it's something that you manifest. And then you find objects for that. People, dogs, houses, things, including compulsion. Because it flows from you, because you are a person who connects deeply with things. I want to hear what you think is love. Of course.

0:42:39

And it's obvious for the rest of the world that a lot of people go to this symbolism.

0:42:42

It's the easiest way to look at themselves, to reaffirm themselves. It's the easiest way. But it's all imagination, right? Everything is imagination, everything is mental. Yeah, the metaphor is a power. So if you put it in this exercise of imagination, things get easier.

0:43:01

I think it's not imagination, I think it's the sense of...

0:43:06

But I didn't understand what you were going to say.

0:43:08

I don't really have a definition of what love is, so I couldn't really find a definition, but for me, loving is not just having a deep love, it's going way beyond that. It's something that doesn't depend on you, it's something that happens without your control, and sometimes it's good, sometimes it's bad, but it's a feeling that never ceases to exist. And even if you stop loving that, when you remember those moments, that love is still alive. But it's because you never stop loving, right? And you're really thinking about a very different love. It's because you change the way you manifest this love.

0:43:49

But love doesn't die. It's because when you say we never stop loving, that love is still in the present. And I understand what you mean.

0:43:58

Because when I remember that memory, the feeling is still there.

0:44:02

But I'm talking about the present. without necessarily remembering that. If this present moment, which I don't have, Solara Amor é uma coisa que a gente escolhe, a gente escolhe amar Mas mesmo assim ele é caótico, as vezes a gente não escolhe amar Eu só quero entender o seu raciocínio Hmm. It's a very parallel thing. So, love for you is not something you choose, it's something that you feel and that comes.

0:45:28

This is the main difference between love and the conception of you two. To love, love is something you choose.

0:45:34

She chooses to love things, people. You don't choose.

0:45:37

Love comes to you, and when it completely dominates you, then you know that you love.

0:45:43

That's it. It's the difference between Adam and Eve, even. This exercise is another provocation for us to... At this moment, we are in the tactics. It happened, I'm realizing that it happened.

0:46:04

deep in the compulsion.

0:46:10

It's another provocation for us to stop, observe and start thinking this other way.

0:46:17

Wow, I'm confused.

0:46:19

That is, my mind is trying to warn me in some way, my body, my soul, my spirit, God, nature, my connection with everything is trying to somehow tell me that I'm looking for pleasure in other things, because in my brain this is totally related, because at some point I made this relationship, but that's not it. She's trying to show me that I'm trying, that I'm wanting something else.

0:46:47

Do you understand? And only at this moment to observe. Only at this moment to observe. I observe that I'm doing this. I observe, right? I remember that, wow, that's not what I want.

0:47:00

What am I wanting? What's going on? What's mine, right? What is this flood of feelings or things that are so muffled that I can't connect with these things? And then comes the other part of the book after that, right? When you can I don't know if you know, but realizing the compulsion is already a great gift, a great wisdom.

0:47:27

Because there are a lot of people who don't even realize what's going on.

0:47:29

So from the moment you start to realize what's going on, and in addition to trying to heal things and trying to drown out, or I'm not going to do this, I'm going to change for this, we haven't reached the part of reducing the damage yet. But we are still in this moment of perceiving, observing and trying to change this key of... Damn, this is a bad thing and now I'm here again, what the hell, this is happening again. Before that, is there something happening? I want you to show me an example of welcoming that is not love. But not everyone who goes there to help a beggar person loves that.

0:48:36

But they love the act of being welcoming. They love the fact of being welcoming.

0:48:43

Because if love were totally directional...

0:48:50

I think love doesn't have that.

0:48:52

It doesn't arouse that feeling of...

0:48:57

No, I was benevolent.

0:48:59

He is beyond that.

0:49:01

You help the human being because you want to.

0:49:03

It's just a manifestation of love.

0:49:05

No, I want what happens. The benevolence is a manifestation of love.

0:49:08

I'm sorry, but I want to see until the end of your argument.

0:49:12

I help this human being because I see him as a human being and he needs it.

0:49:27

That's love, isn't it? No, I think the technique is like this, when you try to help, wanting to show to other people that you're helping, you can't be like that. I want you to feel it, feel it. I want to see where you get to.

0:49:56

No, no.

0:49:57

It's like...

0:49:58

It's like... Love, for me, is like a river that I choose to always let flow. I choose to always let it flow. For everything. For all things. And not directed.

0:50:18

Because we have a culture... We have a cultural mania of... to colonize our love, to take love to something. If I love a man as a man, he is this man. If I love a woman as a woman, she is this woman. If I love a friend, she is this friend. So we direct, we put faces.

0:50:48

So whenever we remember that we are able to love, we immediately remember a face. I remember that I am able to love because I love this person. I remember that I'm able to love because I love my job. And we always put this face, this face to these things. So if I don't create a strong connection with this person to the point of loving them, then I don't love them. If I don't like my job enough, then I don't love it.

0:51:19

And then there are things that we love and there are things that we don't love. It's normal, right? There are things that we love and there are things that we don't love. For me, there's nothing that I don't love. Because love is me. There's no other.

0:51:34

It's like a water that always flows and never stops. And I always choose to leave it open.

0:51:40

So I'm always active, I'm always willing, I'm always completely amazed to fall in love with life. everything and everything. Everyone can be the object of my love because he is not directed, he flows from me. So even if the person has, even if I loved my ex -boyfriend a lot and he hurt me and we broke up, I still keep loving him because it's not about him, it's about me. I don't differ from the concept she's trying to pass on. Yeah, the one you believe in another way, but it also exists. Have you read Plato's banquet?

0:52:52

You need to. In the banquet, Plato speaks masterfully about this point she's trying to talk about. I'm going to be ashamed here, now, trying to explain who I am, close to trying to describe in the same way as Socrates, got it? But let's go. In the banquet, it happens exactly the same thing that is happening here. Socrates is there, the whole crowd is there, and they are debating about love.

0:53:28

And everyone was waiting for Socrates' speech because everyone knew he was strong at that point. And then he brought... it was one of the first books that brings the separation of love in three acts. People start saying that... there are other philosophers before Socrates who were in some visions of love, but which are very limited. It was usually limited to, like, loving someone, or sex, you know? Or, like, dedicating yourself to a hobby, or that love somehow had a face, you know?

0:54:06

Then they tried to link love to the idea of good. But that didn't work either, because love, as you well observed, can also end up leading you to tragedies. Which, in this case, would be when you are in a moment of compulsion. You being in love, you are loving that act, even if that act, in some way, is the cry of a child, you know? When a child feels the need for something and cries, Somehow something pushed her to that direction, right? Somehow a desire, a love, an impulse, a desire, you can call it whatever you want, pushed her to the act.

0:54:55

She loved to cry because she needed something. And then comes Socrates, and he makes the separation of love into three acts, which would be Eros, Agape and Philia. Eros is the concept of love as you know it. would be the conditional love, the directed love, the colonized love. Eros would be the love that possesses you, a dominating love, the love that you feel in your heart like an arrow, like a fireball. The Eros love, which is the one where he is an angel, but he hides a demon inside him, you know?

0:55:40

Eros, he carries an arrow and then in the Aljava, this is how I remember and I read this book a long time ago, you know? So I'm not sure of this specific information, which is that in the Aljava of Eros there is a word, which is water, which in this case would be the unconditional love, the love that engulfs everything, the love that devours everything, the love that engulfs everything. A love that doesn't need a prerequisite, doesn't need a face, doesn't need... It doesn't need, it just is, you know?

0:56:17

And this love is very similar to Eros, it encompasses everything, good and bad. The difference is that Eros is conditioned, you know? It's like that. And there's Philia too, which would be a love more like family, friendship, you know? Eros, we can define it as a thread, as a well of desires, as... I understood, and I also understood what you brought, but I still think that it is not necessarily directed.

0:57:00

I can literally bring what you are bringing, everything you said, But in a sensual way. Like, if I choose to help someone, it's not because that will give me something, or because I want to do charity. No, it's because, in a certain way, that affects my heart, and I want to help. And not because of the feeling that that will cause me. Because everything that that will cause me, goes into a state of, I'm feeding something. And maybe, thinking now, I don't know if it makes sense, maybe even a sensual way,

0:57:59

It's because it generated a feeling of...

0:58:02

If I do this charity, I'm...

0:58:06

In a way, God is pleasing himself.

0:58:09

It's not because this, for me, I want to help more people find meaning in it. I want the message of God to be elevated. No. It's always for yourself.

0:58:21

Always coming back to yourself. That's why love, for me, when I look at a person and... a question for you this act of your mother to donate money even when she is tight a money that maybe will be missing for her at the end of the month do you think this is Agape or Eros? do you think this is fruit? that's it, you got it? it's Eros it's not Agape because Agape is both for the other and for himself, got it?

0:59:06

I love the sky because it is as it is, I love the earth because it is as it is, and I don't like it because it causes me a feeling. That's why love, for me, I have to love as it is.

0:59:18

And the conclusion, from the moment I say that I love that, it gets to a point that for me is very, how is it, like a vertigo. I think it's dangerous, this vertigo. That's why I don't like to say that I love her. Love is dangerous. I accept it. I accept it.

0:59:37

Because the moment I say that I love this person, the chance that when this happens again, and it will happen again, I'll accept it. And whenever it happens, I'll accept it. I love her, she's part of who I am. And every time, I love her, she's part of who I am.

0:59:53

I love you and I want to understand you.

0:59:58

Why am I making these choices? That's why I said, I understand symbolism, but I need this other part. Because if I put everything in symbolism, everything in love, everything in things, and I don't mess what I'm doing, we walk here, look.

1:00:12

And the chance of falling is very low.

1:00:14

But come on. Let's understand this concept better. I think you're almost touching it.

1:00:19

But there really is a dark spot here that we need to illuminate.

1:00:24

Love. But it's not that it's a dark spot. It's just that it's another perspective that's different. But that's it. I understand. I understand about the weight that sometimes we give to this word.

1:00:43

And why yes, because love is a very valuable thing, so it deserves this weight.

1:00:49

It's another type, another perspective.

1:00:52

But if you can welcome, if the welcome for you is a word that can get to this point of... of compulsion, specifically what we're talking about here, if welcoming is a word that can reach, then it's great.

1:01:06

Because it's just about not hating compulsion. So, but then you love yourself, I agree, but you don't love compulsion, it's different from...

1:01:13

It's okay, it's okay.

1:01:14

If welcoming is a word that comes to you comfortably, it's okay.

1:01:18

Guys... What I'm trying to do is to bring this awareness of not hating, of not... compulsion has come to you. the fuck, what am I going to do now?

1:01:27

It has arrived again.

1:01:29

Do you understand?

1:01:29

We don't have this job of making her understand about our perspective because she already understood. No. It's because there really is a point here that needs to be illuminated, you know? No, but you're really insisting on this point. No. And I think it's necessary.

1:01:44

No, I just wanted to talk about the experience related to that, related to this issue of... to receive in that sense, because I spent a long time ago, actually I had a compulsion and I was getting sick, and it had to do with religion, with the church, so this thing of hearing the voice of the preachers and all that was driving me crazy, because I had to fight, literally, against this compulsion.

1:02:10

So what did I do? I gave up. I gave up fighting. When I give up fighting, It cleansed, let's say, so it stopped existing this compulsion in the sense that it existed. In the sense of being a demon, an animal, an atrocious thing like that.

1:02:28

I stopped hating it.

1:02:30

I stopped hating it, exactly. I stopped hating it and fighting.

1:02:34

And then, because the more I fight... I don't remember, I need to go through the Bible over there.

1:02:38

It says that the more you fight, the more you... Yeah, we give our names to the devil. The more you fight, the more it repeats itself. And then when I gave up, it stopped being so frequent at the level it was. foreign foreign foreign Remove the name, you know?

1:03:35

Remove the weight of this name. Stop attributing the name compulsion.

1:03:40

There is a bad thing, an evil, a demon, something that is ending my life.

1:03:45

Instead of that, compulsion is the child's cry. It's the alert. It's that little flashing light that my soul is sending to me with a lot of generosity. And telling me there's something wrong. Because if that didn't happen, If I didn't have this emergency mode activated in my body, activated in my mind, I wouldn't have this opportunity to realize that something wrong is happening. Right.

1:04:17

So, it's one of the possibilities that the body, that our mind brings to us, that our soul brings to us, about, hey, something is happening. And then, still starting from this point, of us bringing the composition in this way, as an alert, There's one thing you said that I really wanted us to go deeper into, which is about calling to talk.

1:04:43

This book continues to talk about all these boxes, right? At the beginning it was talking about closed doors, closed boxes, and us stuck in the back of our minds, trying to imagine things that um um we will be, where we will be, and we are stuck in this looping of the mind, of where we will be, where we will be, but we never are. We are in this moment now of the dynamics, of this dynamics of imagination, we are in this distressing moment where the only small vestige of pleasure that we have, we are there, in compulsion.

1:05:38

Now starting from the point of I realized that the compulsion is showing me that this is wrong.

1:05:45

What do we do now? I just wanted to give a name to the first floor.

1:05:52

From what I understood, the text named our house of the being, the house of the self, in three parts.

1:05:58

The second being the heart and the third being the mind. What is the name of the first?

1:06:02

The basement. The basement.

1:06:06

And in this...

1:06:08

In this basement there are all the boxes of things kept that I don't want to look at.

1:06:13

The feelings are always the same, okay.

1:06:20

And we understood that when there is a compulsion, It's a repressed feeling that's trying to manifest itself. I'm the one who's repressing myself. Emotions, memories, things that I keep, that I don't want to look at. Right.

1:06:41

Things that I don't want to look at. And what is the goal right now? The goal is, what am I going to do from now on?

1:06:50

I realized all of this. I realized that the compulsion is trying to alert me about this.

1:06:55

To look.

1:06:56

I looked at the house, I saw that the house... I was looking for... I was avoiding to say like this... Go do therapy! But this is very dangerous Totally. I'm not saying that this is imaginary, but what is my goal with therapy?

1:07:47

It's opening these boxes. It's opening the boxes. It's because there's a big difference. For example, you get in a coma and you don't do any physical exercise. You're there in bed, your muscle is already atrophying. When you wake up, you won't be able to get up again.

1:08:01

You're going to therapy, you're going to... Anyway, less treatment so you can walk. In the same way, you understand that you have a problem, you know that it exists.

1:08:11

And fuck, you developed a compulsion for it.

1:08:16

If you deal with it alone, maybe, and the chance is high, you don't have the maturity to deal with it alone, because it's a lot of emotional load that's accumulated there.

1:08:25

Oh, and a lot of times you can't even get there, you can't even get there, you can't even be aware of it. And then the therapy is sensational. From the moment you say, well, here I have a problem. What can I do now that can help me?

1:08:42

I don't know, it's starting to look at me, take care of me, hug a tree, do this...

1:08:47

Fiz, aren't you solving it? Therapy. Aren't you solving it? Look for alternatives that can help you, because also understanding the welcome, understanding that we won't always be able to do everything alone. And for me, walking alone is very difficult, very difficult. Even because we are born in need of help.

being to survive. We can't develop on our own. Even if we die alone, and even if we are born, we are not necessarily born alone. There is a mother there with us, there is a whole context. And from the moment you realize and embrace, embrace that non -feeling. I think it's good to be very directional about it.

1:09:31

Because if we just talk about embracing, it leaves a lot of room.

1:09:35

I think that the right word is not about one word.

1:09:51

It's about a branch of attitudes. We are there, realizing that our house is closed, I started doing therapy, in 2, 3, 4, 5 years, there are already a lot of boxes open, there are already windows that are open, there is already an open door, now the feelings that enter through this door, because the feeling will not stop entering. Nothing will stop coming in, everything will keep flowing because I keep living. So the feelings will keep coming in, the traumas will keep coming in, the joys will keep coming in, and also the learnings will keep coming in. Everything is coming into my house. But now I can already receive all these things.

1:10:53

Why?

1:10:53

Because my house is open, I have enough wisdom for that, I can already look at the mourning entering through the door sit with him to talk you know? receive with dignity everything that comes in don't treat like a demon because until then we were taking everything or else we closed our door and didn't let anything in or else we took everything and put it in a box and put it in the basement until then our life was this now we have already learned to open these things, there are still a lot of boxes closed because, you know, there are a lot of things that we are not even aware of that exist. There are still a lot of closed boxes, there are still a lot of closed windows so that certain types of things don't get in because we still don't know how to deal with that, but there are already a lot of things that we can deal with. So we can already deal with frustration, we can already deal with sadness, and in addition to knowing how to deal with sadness, Wait, it's not just dealing with it, it's feeling it too. In addition to being able to deal with sadness, I know how to feel sadness, I know that this is a good thing, and in addition to that, I know what that can bring me as a good thing. No, but I say, for example, when I have a compulsion, is it okay if I bring an example of yours and ask you a question?

1:11:00

Of course, you can. For example, when sadness comes, how do you deal with it?

1:12:32

I do a lot of this imaginative exercise, of imagining that I am a house, that the anesthesia is coming in, and that I am calling her to talk.

1:12:39

Depending on the level of this, depending on how much I know how to deal with it or not, because sometimes I will integrate this into therapy, because I do therapy, or this, or I will deal with it in various ways, and I have developed several mechanisms for this.

1:12:54

Or I'm going to take it to the doctor.

1:13:14

Every time you come, most of the time, do you have all these questions?

1:13:20

If I don't know how to deal with it face to face, right?

1:13:23

Like, I'm sad, I'm going to cry, I watched a sad movie, I'm going to cry, that's it, I solved it. Then you solve it in the case when you cry and... I solved it. I got it.

1:13:31

I solved it.

1:13:32

And if I don't solve it and if that persists, it's because I don't know how to deal with it.

1:13:38

Then I take it to therapy. Usually it's more the sadness that comes first. Sadness, the grief. Grief always comes. Grief always comes, always comes back.

1:13:52

Sadness always comes back for reasons that I thought I had already solved.

1:13:57

And grief too, at the same time.

1:13:58

I fight in the same way.

1:13:59

I feel joy in the same way.

1:14:01

Many times I see joy as something that is not good for me. Or this desire to be... The feeling of solitude, of being alone, of feeling alone.

1:14:16

Everything comes and then everything... That's it.

1:14:19

I call you to talk.

1:14:20

You can come in.

1:14:21

Come into my house. I won't block you. All essences are conversation. That's a lot of work for me. It's just one thing. You said that sometimes joy isn't good.

1:14:35

Sometimes joy isn't good. Say it more or less. For example, sometimes it's a feeling of euphoria that takes me out of my center. Sometimes I need to be focused on something, and then I'm very euphoric, and then that will take me out of my center. Thank you.

1:15:24

um um Sometimes she doesn't have discernment to talk to her. The only thing I can do is hold her in my lap.

1:15:48

Cry, little grasshopper, cry. So when these feelings come, whatever they are, dive into it. Not in the sense of asking, but in the sense of... I understand your question now, about always being a conversation.

1:16:05

It's because I'm talking about conversations being...

1:16:11

I call this feeling to understand what he needs.

1:16:15

Without words, right?

1:16:17

Without words.

1:16:24

But it's for you to understand that you need to cry.

1:16:27

You need to understand.

1:16:29

You need to understand. No, no. Sometimes the will to cry doesn't have a reason. No, but I think I understand what you're trying to say. I think it's like, without words.

1:16:37

You talk without words.

1:16:38

It would be like that.

1:16:39

That's it. That's it. It's if you're present.

1:16:41

As much as the feeling of crying comes suddenly, you are still aware that you are crying, that it is happening.

1:16:45

1:16:49

So even if it takes you suddenly, you will still stop to understand, understand? I think that for me to understand is a care with me, not to let things happen to me without me Without me knowing why that is happening.

1:17:05

But like, we are such a complex being.

1:17:07

We don't have discernment. We are very complex.

1:17:09

And it's a gigantic job for you to understand things.

1:17:12

So that's why we do therapy. This is the point. Sometimes.

1:17:16

And then the exercise I said is, when this feeling comes, the sadness, and usually we know how to recognize without thinking and naming, we just know what it is, we know where it's coming from.

1:17:29

When it arrives, you say, hmm, so that's it. Got it.

1:17:43

But you didn't understand what it is, before being able to express it, you didn't understand what it is.

1:17:49

It's this understanding, it's about... Knowing where it comes from, right? No, not even knowing where it comes from in that first moment. I understood what she said, in the first moment you just cry, damn it. Stop being aware of everything. That's it.

1:18:02

I do that too. But what I'm saying to you is that before you start crying, you have to be sad. I already know what I want to say. Okay, say it. There are things that, like, let's go back to the child. Bless the child for crying, but you welcome her, anyway, go through all that moment.

1:18:23

There are kids, and it's good to remember how you used to be.

1:18:27

I think it helps a lot.

1:18:30

And I think everyone will have their own way of dealing with it.

1:18:33

But yeah, that kid...

1:18:37

Crying, anyway... to let her speak in her time. Don't try to rationalize, because sometimes we rationalize things so much that that child can't even speak.

1:18:52

There's so much she's trying to say that she can't say. And sometimes it's a very simple language that she's going to use, a very small thing. And then you leave her, because the moment she feels comfortable in that place, that she can exist, that she can cry, that she can be all of this, without any of this being rationalized, without this sadness that I'm feeling here now being a problem, without this anger that I was feeling being a problem, well, all of this is part of the process that I'm going through. Cry. It sucks. It sucks that this is happening, but I know I'm trying.

1:19:31

Cry. Cry. Cry. And usually, and now I say it for myself, that's why it makes so much sense to me, which is usually when I let it exist, this feeling of existing, the answer always comes later. Sometimes not at the right time, but it will come little by little. And then you will embrace it.

1:19:51

There's a really cool phrase about this that says that sadness always precedes good decisions. Too much, too much. The silence for me. For me, silence is very primordial. Because from the moment you let it, you let it exist, let it feel, that's it. things come like this, it's much easier to digest.

1:20:12

So maybe, and that's why I asked, do you ask too much, do too much? Because sometimes we don't, sometimes you don't need to ask, it's self-welcoming. And it's not just, it's a welcoming maybe in a different way. Well, if you did all these things and it's not working, try it in a different way. It may be that it works, it may be that your child wants another type of welcome that you are not seeing yet. I understood what you said This dynamic of the child for me is always present, of me understanding this cry of the child.

1:21:07

I'm going to bring the cry of the child because we're talking about it, but it's about this understanding that there is a child, that, you know, anyway. But it's that when this dynamic happens to me, it's not just about the child. Because as I had, this is part of my therapeutic process, As I was very neglected, abandoned and abused as a child, today I need to, along with this dynamic of the child, also remember that I am an adult. So, along with this dynamic of the child, she is never alone. For me, she can never be alone. Because it's a way for me to show myself that it's safe to be me.

1:21:52

Do you understand?

1:21:53

Do you understand this phrase, of you telling yourself, it's safe to be me?

1:21:58

So, whenever I bring this dynamic of the child to be able to settle something that is happening, she is never alone. She is always accompanied by an adult, which is me.

1:22:11

And then, at the same time that I understand these needs of this child, I welcome and do what she needs for her, right?

1:22:20

If she needs to cry, if she needs to scream, squeeze a pillow, if she needs to dance, if she needs to walk, if she needs to travel, if she needs to see something new, if she needs to be stimulated by some other kind of thing, because she's feeling... Anyway, I see what she needs, I give her what she needs, and I always realize that I'm an adult and I'm here to satisfy what she needs, but also to repress certain types of feelings that I don't want to deal with right now. Because I have an adult life.

1:22:58

Do you understand? Because I'm... Along with this child, I always have an adult. I agree with you, but I think there are times when we need to be just a child. And welcome this child. For me, there is no such moment as being just a child.

1:23:11

Like, I understand that she is still a child.

1:23:13

I will never leave her alone.

1:23:15

But it's part of my therapeutic process.

1:23:20

Yes, yes, yes.

1:23:20

This talk about children, I don't know if I've talked about it here on the show or not, but there's a video of...

1:23:27

It's a meditation video, it's an hour or so before you go to sleep, actually.

1:23:33

It's called, cure your life while you sleep, I think it's Luiz Rey.

1:23:37

Anyway, in it, she talks about this issue of treating you like a child, you welcome her into your heart, and then you call, she goes to sleep with her father too, with a child too, a four -year -old child.

1:23:53

And the mother also calls the mother and the three stay there.

1:23:56

Like, this during meditation, you know?

1:23:58

It's pretty cool, I recommend it, by the way.

1:24:01

It's just that the child is very dependent, right? Yeah.

1:24:05

She kind of treats you, the father and the mother, as children.

1:24:08

She is very dependent on everything.

1:24:11

Take care of her. She doesn't know how to deal with it alone. I already know better. It's because... But I'm liking it, I'm liking the many ways you're trying to explain something. It's cute.

1:24:26

I think we have to trust the child. The child also has a voice, you know? But my child has a voice. She has autonomy. Ever since you said everything you said, you always look at everything you said. you say that you are here and the child is here, even if she has those wills, who is in the center is you, there is no such thing here, it is always like that, you fulfill her wills, all of them, but she is in her place as a child, understand?

1:25:06

Because if she is the child, she is in her place as a child.

1:25:10

It's because I think that everything you are is here, equipped. I don't understand I don't understand she sees that she can be a child, when I'm a child, she sees that she can be a child and can speak the way she wants, she wants to be received and she understands that all these others here are welcoming her, she can have maturity to exist. Now when it gets like this, it's a child she wants, and when she's released a little bit, she'll want to be here, so the thing is, is I understand, I understand, now in this aspect of superiority, I understand what you mean. I understand, I understand. I do a lot, I already did a lot, nowadays I do little, but it's literally, if I was having something that I needed to deal with in my childhood, and I remembered, to be able to solve this, I cried horrors, and I was going to write, and I wrote as if I were a three -year -old child, two years old, and I spoke, feeling here, I have written, said and everything, Because I'm going to leave it out with the feeling I was having at that time and how that hurt me at that time.

1:27:13

And not a vision, a vision more outside of what I felt at that time, what I needed, what I wanted. No, it's the vision of that time being now. I wanted this, I wanted that. From a very young age. And it's very easy for you to...

1:27:33

And when this child's flow passes, it will pass, it doesn't stay, because I'm always there, he always comes back.

1:27:40

And when you read that, you see, man, it was all in my face. That's it, that's what I wanted, and I can change that.

1:27:52

That's why sometimes silence is very necessary, you let that child cry, cry, cry, cry, and then let the answer be born. Because she is born, she is born in some way, whatever the way, but let her be, be, without necessarily satisfying her will.

1:28:08

I'm not going to pamper my child, I want to hear her and not necessarily pamper her.

1:28:12

Then I'll pamper her, let's see and understand what's going on here first. But that's it, the more we know, the more fragmented it is The more we are willing to go deeper in our own knowledge, in self-knowledge.

1:28:43

I think that's what self-knowledge is, it's that illumination, you get to the stage of illumination, of ascension.

1:28:50

But then, when you actually get into the process, you see that it's that fragmentation for several things.

1:28:57

I remembered something.

1:28:59

And that each thing needs a different look, a different dynamic, a mechanism.

1:29:04

different to be able to solve that.

1:29:08

You are the sum of all your past egos. I think she is bigger than the sum of her parts. Including.

1:29:18

I think we are bigger than the sum of our parts.

1:29:22

We are bigger than the sum of our forms.

1:29:23

It makes sense, because you are all parts. um um is It makes sense. Yeah, it makes a lot of sense. I know. At the end, you explained it.

1:30:10

If it was at the beginning, you would say, worrying, worrying. But then I understood you. It makes a lot of sense.

1:30:16

I know it does.

1:30:20

So for us to think about the practice, from beginning to end, understanding the compulsion as being this alert.

1:30:31

And instead of just trying...

1:30:35

Until then, we weren't repairing the damage, we were just looking for what it needs.

1:30:41

so that the compulsion is alerting, and then therapy, and opening boxes, and opening the house, and making the house more and more airy, and then I'm more and more able to receive the feelings and emotions, and receive the emotions that are coming, and then now I already know, I'm a wonderful hostess, inside my house, right? My airy, beautiful, wonderful house.

1:31:09

There are still a lot of things to be fixed, but this is a job that is life, it's the job of life. So now, at this moment, even so, the compulsion comes, because there is still a lot of boxes to be opened, the work continues, so the compulsion will keep coming back to remind us that there is still work to be done.

1:31:35

Now, yes, I am at this point of being aware and already working for it. How do I deal with compulsion now?

1:31:46

It will come back.

1:31:47

It will come back. Inevitably it will come back. Inevitably it will come back.

1:31:50

Does compulsion have a cure?

1:31:51

Does compulsion have a cure? I don't know. I don't know.

1:31:59

I didn't get to the point of knowing that there is a cure.

1:32:02

Is there a cure?

1:32:03

Never feel the will again?

1:32:04

No, the cure is just now to be aware and be able to, like, let's suppose your composition is food.

1:32:10

It's just that there is no cure from a medical point of view, right?

1:32:13

Scientific, medical.

1:32:14

There is no cure, I will never feel it again. Composition. Now from a therapeutic point of view, maybe there is a way for you, now I understand, I realized it coming before it came, And now I already know how to deal with it. The thing that helps me a lot is to have behaviors like this. When the feeling comes, when the desire to do something that I said I wouldn't do comes, the first thing I think is, it's very important for me if I did it now, I want to make this choice, I really want to make this choice, Even knowing the consequences, if the answer is yes, and sometimes it will be, you want to go for it, well, then go. That's it.

1:33:04

And it's all right. Go there. Right. When... Just here. Then we'll get into vertigo again here.

1:33:12

It's dangerous.

1:33:13

because this can become a new pattern, but it's very easy, it's very easy, I like it, it's very easy, it's the easiest thing there is.

1:33:25

You know, since you, at least for me, when I recognize that this is a behavior of my child, then I see all my friend, my way of being able to do things like that, and I talk to myself, don't you want to ride?

1:33:42

Let's go for a ride, princess?

1:33:44

Then I give a little laugh, see that I'm doing it, and say, but it's just a little bit. Then I start talking to myself, in my versions. If I don't do it, I don't think about the consequences, no. It's all right, I'll do it. Then the child calms down, when you talk to her, her way. That's why I say it's very important for me to let everyone here be on the same level, because it's easier for you to hear what she wants and talk to her.

1:34:17

Because from the moment the child feels that she is being heard, in fact, she tends to talk a lot more. What she says will be heard, it won't go unnoticed, it won't be that I don't agree with something, it will be heard. Cool.

1:34:32

For me, this works a lot.

1:34:34

Cool.

1:34:35

I don't always get it right, I have a lot of mistakes, but like... When you get it right, that's it.

1:34:42

And even when I don't get it right, the choice I made... of following that behavior, even knowing the consequences, I welcome him too.

1:34:51

I also know that I am human and that I will make mistakes and countless other times I am trying to be independent. It's okay, I'm not perfect, I'm not going to get it right all the time, I'm going to make mistakes. So, okay, let's make mistakes together here. For me, this works. I give this welcome too, to make mistakes and to get it right. I was going to say, and then you love the mistake, but I'm not going to say that word to you.

1:35:16

I'm not going to say that. To generate another shyness. We're going to have to get into the shyness of love, but it's infinite, it never ends.

1:35:26

And for you, cutie?

1:35:31

She didn't say a word. When does the compulsion come?

1:35:34

Now, from all this, from all this, everything we've built, does the compulsion come again? And then, how do we deal with it?

1:35:49

So, if it's a leak, it's the leak of a problem.

1:35:55

So, there will always be problems, and either you face them or you run away.

1:36:03

And I think that the concussion, whenever you don't want to face the problem, I think that everyone will have a moment of weakness, it will appear.

1:36:13

So, I don't think there is a cure for concussion in that sense, because we will always go through difficulties, and we won't always want to look at that.

1:36:24

And getting rid of the compulsion is very difficult, because when you get rid of the compulsion, wow, now I'm going to have to look at the problem.

1:36:32

People don't want to look at the problem, because sometimes it's not just a problem, it's a truck of problems. And in that sense, I don't know what to do, because it will always be there, because we will always have problems.

1:36:45

It's the movie I'm going to watch.

1:36:47

Because from the moment we see it as an escape, not as a child's cry, maybe, or not as repetitive actions, but as an escape, because it's literally an escape, wow, I don't know.

1:37:05

She listened to her father a lot. I think I've said too much. What to do with a compulsion?

1:37:29

In practice.

1:37:32

What to do with a compulsion in practice?

1:37:37

I can say what I do, because mine is..

1:37:45

1:37:46

It's just a matter of having a little bit of confusion about how to do it.

1:37:50

shopping Most of the time, it's food There's food at home, you don't need to buy it But it's so good But at the same time, I think it's good to go out sometimes to have a snack Sometimes I select a day, once in a month, once a week Or when I'm at the market, I try to talk to myself in that sense.

1:38:25

Like, is this really necessary?

1:38:28

Then no.

1:38:29

But then I'm going to take at least one thing, just so I don't upset this child.

1:38:33

Yes, yes.

1:38:34

I'm going to take at least one thing, that's what I'm going to do today.

1:38:36

Balance everything, right?

1:38:38

No, I'm going to take just this, just to pamper her, just so she doesn't get upset. A kiss. Then I remembered just one thing. A kiss. Give her the cell phone. Give her the cell phone.

1:38:49

Give her the tablet. Let her watch the tablet. Good. Very good, very good. But that's it. What I do when I notice a compulsion is always this balance.

1:39:19

It's always this balance.

1:39:21

Because if I deny the compulsion, deny what she wants, I have the impression that it gets even worse and it never ends, because frustration comes along and I have a huge difficulty in denying things.

1:39:41

Like, man, fasting for me is very difficult.

1:39:45

because if I'm in a frantic work rhythm and I spend the whole day without eating, it's easy.

1:39:52

But if I refuse to eat, like, if I refuse, for example, I can spend my whole life at home drinking juices.

1:40:04

Tasty juices of various types of fruit, piriri, pororo.

1:40:07

I spend all this time without drinking soda.

1:40:10

But if I refuse to drink soda... Guys, I don't know what happens to me. I have a... I have a huge difficulty with things being denied to me. It's very difficult for me. It's my weakness. It's like a spoiled child.

1:40:27

Huh? Like a spoiled child. Like a spoiled child. But I have a huge difficulty. Huge. So, if I refuse to do what is Kombuki, what Kombuki is, to me it's food.

1:40:39

If I refuse to eat what I want, that grows in a way that I start to get stressed because I didn't do that, I get extremely frustrated, my life becomes shit, it seems that everything in life became shit because I didn't do that.

1:40:55

And then nothing that was supposed to be good is no longer good because I didn't do that. That's my big problem. So I always try to... is to do what I want to do, but then I do it in a way as if it were a very big thing.

1:41:12

For example, if in my compulsion my business is to eat a party snack, I always want to eat this party snack. If I feel like eating a party snack, I'm going to buy a party snack set, I'm going to buy soda, I'm going to make it look like a gigantic party, the act of eating that party snack. That was actually a smart move. foreign foreign foreign foreign Then I feel that everything is fine, that it passed, that everything is fine. The bill was... It's as if the bill had been paid.

1:42:33

The bill was paid. It was exported. What is the feeling you have in relation... What is the first memory you have about party snacks? If you go back, back there, what is the first memory you have with party snacks? Why eat food?

1:42:50

When my mother...

1:42:52

When my mother got caught or something happened at home that was extremely serious, Right after, my mom used to make really good food for us to eat.

1:43:01

But it wasn't the normal food that my mom used to make. My mom used to make a food that was very special. And she always did it, it was her way of welcoming me. Like, my mom didn't sit with me to talk about... This happened...

1:43:15

How are you feeling about this?

1:43:18

Because my mom didn't even know how she was... Anyway...

1:43:21

But her way of welcoming me was...

1:43:23

After everything happened, that everything went down, that things went down... my mom used to make food, but it was really good food.

1:43:31

It's really cool.

1:43:32

And when I think about the party snack, it reminds me of...

1:43:35

lot of this very tasty food that my mom used to make after something bad happened.

1:43:41

And everything was fine.

1:43:43

I've tried to talk to her, but she's not open to dialogue. She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't...

1:43:53

She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:54

She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:54

She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:54

She doesn't...

1:43:54

She doesn't...

1:43:55

She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:43:55

She doesn't...

1:43:55

She doesn't... She doesn't... She doesn't...

1:44:04

She doesn't...

1:44:04

She Because nowadays these things don't happen anymore. These things don't happen anymore.

1:44:08

It was just a case of violence. It was just a case of something very extreme. A bad thing. A boring thing. Yeah.

1:44:15

Do you see the pattern? And it's cool how you see the pattern. Oh, my daughter, therapy, right?

1:44:21

Look at me, look. I had no idea why it was food. I had no idea.

1:44:28

But when it came, when I remembered it...

1:44:32

Fuck, that's it.

1:44:36

Is that it?

1:44:36

Then you know how to control it.

1:44:38

No, now she knows the origin.

1:44:39

Imagine the power that good food has in my life.

1:44:44

Stop to think about the power that good food has in my life.

1:44:49

Because it was the only moment that I knew that what was so bad was over. Do you understand?

1:44:57

Wow, our childhood.

1:44:59

It's a giant power.

1:45:00

Our childhood defines our adult life.

1:45:01

It's a giant power in my life, good food.

1:45:03

So I'm going to deny, you know? I'm going to deny good food. I'm not going to deny good food for me. I'm not going to deny anything, but that's it.

1:45:15

The child is here, but the adult is also here.

1:45:19

And the father? The father is not here.

1:45:21

The father died.

1:45:25

The father in the sense of the laws and the rigor that you apply to yourself, you know?

1:45:30

The mother would be like the mediator between the father and the child.

1:45:32

The child would be the desires that you have.

1:45:36

What is it? Father, mediator?

1:45:38

Yeah, the father, the father, the laws and the rigor, you know?

1:45:41

Kind of like that.

1:45:42

Good rigor. Yeah, kind of like the principle of reality, like the one who says that you have to work, that you can't lie, that you have to be historical, you know?

1:45:54

That you have to be a firm person.

1:45:57

The father has this function to make us go, right?

1:46:01

To take us out of the nest.

1:46:03

So he shows this ability to us and shows us that we have this ability to no longer be in the mother's nest.

1:46:11

So he kind of pushes us out.

1:46:14

um um Which is the role of the father, the role of the mother, the role of the son That's why I say, the child is in the place of the child, of the child The adult is in the place of the adult, of being an adult The father is in the place of the father, of being a father When I left home, neither of the two wanted me to leave, you know?

1:47:00

Yeah, it's because they're two different concepts, right? Like, when I say...

1:47:05

In my metaphor about the father, when I talk about the father, I'm also referring to rigor, etiquette, laws...

1:47:11

Yes, but these are the things that prepare you for society, right?

1:47:15

That prepare you to live alone.

1:47:18

You don't learn rigor and etiquette to live all day in your mother's house.

1:47:25

um the mother would be the one who measures the desires of the child and the father the father wants to take you away from home the child has a desire for children because she is a child and the mother is the one who talks to the father and sees what he wants from the child talks to the child and sees what the child wants for himself but then she also teaches you to relate to that with the father?

1:48:01

to relate because she is the stereotype of the relationship the mother?

1:48:10

that's why you're the mother, I'm the mother We are all mothers.

1:48:15

We are all fathers.

1:48:17

God is a mother.

1:48:18

God is a mother.

1:48:19

And I am God.

1:48:20

God is the three of us.

1:48:22

The father, the mother and the son.

1:48:24

And I am God.

1:48:24

And I am me.

1:48:26

And I am you. Potentials. But that's it. There are many metaphors and allegories and myths and... and fables that we create to be able to understand things.

1:48:48

So that's it, we have theory, we have conflict, we have practice, we have Chaiprosa. Thank you very much.

1:49:04

Another job, my friend.

1:49:07

When I leave the house... and I just wanted to leave, they didn't want me to leave. They didn't want you to leave? They didn't want me to leave. But what did you do? I said, if God wants me to go, I'll go.

1:49:34

God wanted it.

1:49:38

How old were you? I was 11 years old.

1:49:42

That's a long time.

1:49:44

How old are you now?

1:49:46

I was 21.

1:49:48

How old were you?

1:49:49

21.

1:49:54

um um Never again, since I was 16. Almost half of my life already. Why are you laughing?

1:50:35

I didn't understand. No, I'm not being rude to you.

1:50:38

It's better.

1:50:41

17, 14, 15.

1:50:49

Very cool, very cool. After high school, did you do anything good? I did. I'm a PhD student. Cool.
How long did you study for?

1:50:57

4 years. What is this, guys?

1:51:00

It's been a long time studying, right?

1:51:02

It was 10 years.

1:51:03

Wow.

1:51:05

10 years.

1:51:06

Only 10 years of higher education, right?

1:51:10

Yes.

1:51:15

I don't know if I'm asking a very intimate question.

1:51:34

You don't need to answer that.

1:51:42

No, what is compulsion?

1:51:44

I know this is a very intimate question, but if you don't want to answer, it's fine.

1:51:50

Is it personal or...? Dude, I was thinking about incursion. Maybe you should talk about it in a generic way. Should I say it all? It's because, like, when I think about incursion, I think about something that I definitely don't stop doing. And I can't think about something that I don't stop doing.

1:52:09

But something specific.

1:52:11

But it's something that I know I do, that I do too much, and I want to do so many things that sometimes I leave things aside to do this thing.

1:52:20

Which is feeling things.

1:52:25

foreign um

1:53:19

And what was your first memory doing this? Just simply being?

1:53:35

Oh, Manga.

1:53:37

Here comes the horror.

1:53:38

Here comes Agatha.

1:53:42

During... No, she's just kidding.

1:53:47

During my entire childhood, I was able to be very free.

1:53:52

I used to hug Zachary, I used to call my mom and tell her she was my best friend.

1:53:57

I've always had a lot of... What is it?

1:54:08

What is it?

1:54:09

Are you laughing?

1:54:10

Do you see it?

1:54:11

Sometimes it's very good, sometimes it makes me very desperate.

1:54:16

Because sometimes I need to focus a lot and I can't.

1:54:19

Because there are so many stigmas happening.

1:54:23

Because this one here needs a lot of stigmas.

1:54:25

I need to focus all of you here. It's going to give me work. And that hurts me in some aspects. So I find myself very compulsive in feeling things. Very compulsive.

1:54:36

But is it true that you have the same name?

1:54:39

No. I asked and she didn't want to answer. That's what she thought. What about you, Giovana? Giovane or Nah? Nah.

1:54:53

Giovane.

1:54:55

Giovane.

1:54:57

Giovana. What was the first... the first... But you said you didn't want to talk about it, so you interpreted it as an escape. So, not talking about your composition itself, what is your first memory... But, so, not talking about the composition itself, what is your first memory that you remember that you were running away from something? Like, your first memory will probably define a lot about what you think about fire.

1:55:53

It can be, like, both you literally running away from something or the first memory you remember about someone explaining what fire is. I don't know.

1:56:19

Foreign Foreign Maybe there is.

1:56:57

Maybe there is.

1:56:58

You just don't remember. And you? What do you want to ask? What do you want me to remember? What is your conclusion? In the sense of the word, I think I don't have a conclusion.

1:57:31

I'm a human being in the middle.

1:57:33

No, but I have addictions.

1:57:35

Addictions I have, for sure.

1:57:38

What are addictions?

1:57:39

And what's the difference between an addiction and a compulsion?

1:57:41

A compulsion is something obsessive, right?

1:57:43

An addiction you do, like, one time, another time...

1:57:47

No, no, you're not an addict.

1:57:49

You're not an addict, no. An addict is a dietician. No, a dietician is also an addict. But with a high frequency. Repeatedly.

1:57:56

It's an addiction.

1:57:58

An addiction is the same as a compulsion, then?

1:58:07

Let's say I'm addicted to marijuana.

1:58:11

I go there, smoke 3, 4 packs, get high and I'm good.

1:58:14

But if I was compulsive with marijuana, I would smoke 3, 4, 6, 8, 12, you know?

1:58:32

Why are you looking for his validation at this point? It's a joke. I got it. Ok, let's talk about it. I really like to watch cartoons. Sometimes I know I have responsibilities and I watch it all day long.

1:58:51

If you don't mind. Let me see what else... What would you feel for me? Like... Run away. I know there's a responsibility I have to do, but I run away.

1:59:04

But like, not necessarily. I want to feel guilty. It's okay, because we brought this word here to Roda, right? It's still recent in my memory, but that's not the case. The point I'm trying to say is that... He asked.

1:59:17

You're right. It's ok, it can be. I run away, it's ok. I feel good about it. I love it, by the way. Because sometimes I know that I need 20 % of pleasure to have 80 % of result. What is 20 % of pleasure?

1:59:35

I ask myself that. What is 20 % of pleasure that I need now to generate 80 % of result? 80 -20, right? Yeah, 80 -20. 80 -20 for me is the thing that I hate the most. 80 -20?

1:59:57

Because it really happens. What is 80 -20? 80 -20 is the following. You have a wall 40 meters by 7 meters high to do. You do 80 % of the shit on the wall. When you get to the last 20, it takes you twice as long to do what you did those last 80%.

2:00:17

Always. Always the last 20 % of the wall is the most curled up. Rule of 40, right? Rule of 40. Maybe. But always.

2:00:30

Always. Doing 80 % is like this, look. Guys, it was really good.
